

A number of weddings, several receptions, October hall and iuncheons and din-icad libitum make up the social calen-of the week. The clanger of wedding is fills the air and a long list of inter-dar of the week. The changer of wedding bells fills the air and a long list of interesting evenus is announced for next week when the season will be in full swing. Society people have allowed themselves a more thorough rest during the past months than usual and the belles of last year and the buds of the coming winter are all ready for the fray all armed with bright eyes and rosy cheeks and in many cases with a healthful tan gained by much living out of doors.

Of first interest will be the wedding of Miss Josephine Adams and Mr. Henry E. Long, although an out-of-town affair, being celebrated in Quincy, Ill. the home of the bride's parents, on Wednesday. The ceremony will take place at 7 o'clock and will be followed by a large reception. Miss best man. Mr. Adam long, Mr. and Mrs. Louis best man. Mr. Adam long, Mr. and Mrs. Louis best man. Women's Clubs.

Women's Clubs.

Next week the Kansas City club season will be opened. Club women will don their most intellectual smiles and prepare for an assault upon the citadels of knowledge. Carnival week, with its frivolity, will be completely forgotten. Shakespeare, Emerson and Browning will hold sway in place of King Ki Ki. Loyal subjects they will fird, too, for the club movement among the women is one of the most enthusiastically supported measures of the day.

The Athenacum will open on Wednesday afternoon at the usual hour, 2:39 p. m. Mrs. Scammon, the president, will address the club and her two distinguished guests, Mrs. Willis Lord Moore, of Sunta Barbara, Chi., and Mrs. Selwyn Douglas of Okkahoma, will tell something of the club movement moons.

One of the charming culture clubs of the lity is the Music Study Club, an organiza-tion whose success is greatly due to the well directed efforts of Mrs. J. W. Barney. Once a month on Saturday mornings a musical is given, usually at Mrs. Barney's home in Hyde Park. There is always one home in Hyde Park. There is always one special artist for the morning and selections from Mozart, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Brahms and others are exquisitely rendered. One of the most interesting features, however, is the work done by Mrs. Barney's juvenile pupils in writing songs. A wonderful ability in this line is displayed by all of them. The club itself is very informal, there being no officers. Light refreshments are served at the morning entertainments. entertainments.

The Nautilus Club, of Sedalia, has issued a very artistic green and gold year book, setting forth a very attractive year's programme. Oral topics are a feature of this excellent training school for club women. Three members give their subjects without the aid of notes each week, then is one written paper, and then a general discussion, led by another member. French history and literature alternate in most judicious fashion. Several afternoons will be devoted to psychological studies. Next. Wednesday oral topics on ancient Gaul will be given by Misses Catherine Antes and Josephine Brown and, Mrs. W. E. Bard, Jr. Mrs. J. W. Offield will read a paper on cloves. The discussion, led by Mrs. William Curran, will be on the following subject: "Was the Christianity of Gaul More in Harmony With Christ's Teachings Than the Christianity of To-day." One of the very excellent provisions in the Nautilus Club constitution relates to applications for the Christianity of 10-day? One of the very excellent provisions in the Nautilius Club constitution relates to applications for membership. The Friends in Council, of Springfield, Mo., have before them an ideal course of study for a women's club. The programme divides the work into four general divisions, namely, "The Oedipus Story in Literature," "The Oedipus Motive in Modern Literature," "Evolution in Ideals" and "Human Brotherhood in Browning and Whitman."

"The Oedipus Motive in Modern Literature," "Evolution in Ideals" and "Human Brotherhood in Browning and Whitman." Each week a paper and a debate will carry on the regular subject. Topics of the times and parliamentary drill will be used to open the meetings. The first division is devoted to a study of the motives and effects of the treatment of the Oedipus story by Aeschylus, Sophocles and Euripides. The second division takes up the study of King Lear as a modern exposition of the same motive. Under "Evolution in Ideals" the ideas of God, fatherhood, soulship and daughterhood as expressed by Sophocles and Shakespeare are compared. Under the fourth caption are found subjects relating not only to Browning and Whitman, but involving the evolution of mind and the emotions. For next Friday, October 14, the programme will be as follows:

"Topics of the Times," Mrs. E. M. Waddill: paper, "Early Greek Versions," Mrs. Sallie B. Smith; topic for debate, "How far does Aeschylus go in making the house of Oedin-is like that of his Agamemnon? Is the Nemesis of Aeschylus more moral than fatal?" Mrs. Alice M. Schwieder.

The Ladies' Reading Club; of Junction City, Kas., is one of the pioneer clubs of the state being now twenty-three years old. It is famous on account of its handsome club house and extensive library, as well as for the culture and literary attainments of its members. All business is transacted according to the most rigid parliamentary ruling, and the members have learned by experience that favoritism is an unknown quantity. A grand plano graces the platform of the assembly room in the club house, and two musical numbers appear on each Thursday's programme. The year's study of Shakespeare was begun September 1st. Together with strictly Shakespearean researches, contemporaneous history and literature will be presented throughout the season. Oral topics are given by the different members—a practice which has served to infuse self-possession and confidence into the hearts of many timid women. These speeches have subjects such as "Powers of Congress," "Comparison of Property Rights of Women and Men," "Origin and Growth of the Constitution of the United States," "The Wonders of Heat," "Historic Spots in Kansas," "The Resourceful Woman," "Sidney Lanier." "Our State University," etc. The officers of the L. R. C. are: President, Mrs. R. W. Scott: vice president, Mrs. K. F. in the discovery of a romance, which had its beginning at Atlantic City during the summer, and which has its ending in the information contained in a dispatch received by the Philadelphia police from Marietta, O., yesterday, and which cleared up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Agnes Perry, the le-year-old daughter of Dr. William Perry, of the United States army, whose Philadelphia home is at Columbia avenue.

To start at the beginning of the romance, Miss Perry went to the city by the sea, where, with a party of Philadelphia young ladies, she proposed spending the summer. One day there appeared on the scene a young Southerner, who seemingly had more money than he knew what to do with, splendid wardrobe and a plentiful supply of good looks. Not many days had passed until Miss Perry was singled out by the rich young man and she received every attention at his hands.

The young man said that his name was

Stole Her Hair for Love.

From the San Francisco Examiner.

A young man in Vienna. Wenzel Wetrefski by name, was recently arrested and brought into court on a charge of cutting off and detaining a certain lock of golden hair belonging to Veronica, formerly his betrothed. The accused confessed that he hal taken the hair, but refused to give it up, and made a statement to the court in justification of his conduct.

He pleaded that he loved Veronica to distraction, but that she had lately received his advances with indifference; therefore he requested a decisive interview at a fixed date. "Then and there on that day," said the accused, "I pleaded with her, but she turned her head from me. In despair I threw my arms around her neck and wept for grief. Then I regarded her lordly locks. Ach! Madners possessed me. I cut one and fled, and she—she ran for the police."

Veroncia (addressing magistrate from the back of the court)—"I want my hair back—he shall give it back."

Counsel (to the accused)—"Have you sold it?"

The prisoner (patting his pocket)—"No, I have it here—every hair of it."

Horseradish Season.

Good cooks always buy plenty of horseradish, for you have no idea how many are the fine dishes which may be made with the root. Lots of people make a very toothsome sauce by covering one pound of sliced horseradish root with spirits
of wine and keeping the mixture tightly corked. Then this is added drop by drop to the white sauces used for meats of fishes. When mixed with a little fresh mustard and red pepper the horseradish
and spirits of wine make a great sauce for broiled beef or deviled chicken.

Horse radish vinegar is another conduction much used and the way to make it is to soak a cupful of freshly grated spot
together with an ounce of minced onloss,
a piece of garlie and a pinch of red pepper
in a quart of cider vinegar. After this has been kept corked up for a week it is strained through a cloth and bottled for use, it is a pleasant addition to a number of salads.

Many of the restaurants where the cooks
are foreigners grow a very fine salad from horseradish. They take the crowns which are left after the roots are dug up and bury them upright in moist beds which they keep specially for the purpose in the dark warm cellar under the restaurants.
